

UNDER LAW TO MAKE WINE IS CRIMINAL ACT

Provision in Prohibition Act Makes Home Brewers Liable to Penalties and $1,000 Fine.

You may not make beverages containing half of 1 per cent or a greater percentage of alcohol in your own home or establishment. Any made or obtained before July 1, 1919, may be retained, but it may not be sold.

It may not be transported to another place over any public thoroughfare.

On these hang all the rest of the law—the wartime prohibition act, at any rate. The foregoing is a skeleton of the provisions which became operative July 1, and will continue in operation until the war is officially declared ended.

property kept and used in maintaining such a place, is hereby declared to be a public and common nuisance. Later, the penalty for anyone found conducting such a place, where liquor is made or distributed, is fixed as a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or imprisonment for not less than 30 days or more than one year, or both.

Nobody Allowed to Make.
There was a belief generally current that the wartime prohibition law allowed liquors of any alcoholic strength to be manufactured in the home for home use. Persons holding to this belief saw cause for debate in the action of internal revenue officers who confiscated stills in East Moline and Illinois homes during the past few days, arresting the men operating the liquor manufacturing. Even though their product may have been for their own private use the offense still warrants the action which is to be taken against the men.

If the prohibition ban is lifted between now and Jan. 16, the ruling in regard to the sale of liquor country-wide will revert back to that enforced the latter part of June, 1919, before the present act became effective. That is, any married man may manufacture wine of any alcoholic strength, and in quantities up to 200 gallons per year, in his own home and for his own use, but he must have a license to do so. If he wishes to make more than 200 gallons he must procure a permit for that special purpose from the internal revenue office. This in dry districts. The sale of intoxicating liquor over a half of 1 per cent alcohol, will still be barred from territory which went dry under local option. This includes all the territory in and for miles around the tri-city.

Short Damp Spell.
The crisis would be a short one, however. Jan. 16 the permanent prohibition law goes into effect. Then the conditions described as existing under wartime prohibition will once more be active for all time unless the act is repealed. Should the war not be declared ended before that date there will be no relaxing of the dry enforcement at any place in the country.

Carefully worked out with a view toward guarding against any possible laxity in its construction, the national prohibition act, effective now as the war prohibition ruling, and becoming reestablished permanently on Jan. 16, prevents the appearance of an iron-bound document. Nothing is left to the imagination of the revenue officials, and all possible cases of violation of the spirit of the law are covered by provisions within it. It has anticipated almost every possibility of violation by carefully stating just what it wants suppressed and defining in certain and precise words and phrases every term used in it.

At the Country Club, at dinners, at receptions— wherever the most critical people go

WHEREVER you go this season, at the club—everywhere that people gather who are especially discriminating—you will find them drinking Yuban. They have come to expect its mellow, satisfying flavor. Unconsciously they have learned to look forward to it, to count on it as almost a right at every affair, big and little.

From enjoying it at entertainments they have become so attached to it that they are spoiled for any other coffee. Now every morning for breakfast at home, too, your friends are drinking Yuban.

It is the most popular breakfast coffee as well as the most popular after-dinner coffee in both Chicago and New York.

Yuban is so inexpensive that without extravagance you can enjoy it every day.
